Special ALERTS

ICEBERG LETTUCE

The iceberg lettuce market in Salinas is experiencing an uptick this week due to light supply and moderate demand. Cold weather has led to lighter weights and smaller heads. The market is expected to remain elevated until weather conditions improve.

SQUASH

Zucchini and yellow squash are extremely limited, with very good demand driving high market prices. Due to weather, western production is behind schedule, and harvested squash tends to be small.

PEPPERS

Eastern green bell pepper supply is light, with high demand pushing the market up. Red and yellow bell pepper supply is also limited. Increased demand is causing the market to trend higher.

AVOCADOS

Mexican avocado markets continue to rise as fewer growers harvest. In California, heavy harvesting is ongoing, with sizes peaking at 48 and 60 ct. Quality is excellent, and strong harvests are expected to continue through July.

GREEN BEANS

Green beans are very tight, with a high market due to sporadic plantings affected by rain and weather issues in Georgia.

ORANGES

The Valencia season has begun as the Navel season winds down. Small oranges remain in extremely short supply and will continue to be scarce until the Navel crop starts in the Fall.

PINEAPPLE

The market for larger pineapples is very tight due to lack of rain and continuous heat, which has prevented the fruit from sizing up. External quality is fair, but the fruit often appears scarred and brown due to stress.

CANTALOUPE

Cantaloupe volume and quality are improving, but not enough to meet the increased demand. Larger fruit is more readily available.
